1. Starting at the Star Ferry Pier No. 8 (Hung Hom Pier), walk westwards past the ferry piers. Central Hong Kong's amazing skyline is visible from all points, along with views across the harbour to Kowloon.

2. Walk through the underpass at the Shun Tak Centre, where the Macau ferries depart.

3. Once through the Shun Tak Centre, join the harbour footpath. There are views across to Kowloon, Tsing Yi, and beyond. The Stonecutters Bridge is easily visible.

4. Enter the Sun Yat Sen Memorial Park, featuring ornamental gardens with fountains and a statue of Sun Yat Sen.

5. Continue along the Central and Western District Promenade, passing street art, graffiti, art installations, and play areas made from recycled materials. Note: As of November 2023, there is construction along this part of the route, requiring a detour around the back of the Western Wholesale Food Market.

6. Keep heading west past the wholesale markets. At the end of the Central and Western Promenade, turn right. Previously, you could access the Western District Public Cargo Area, known as Instagram Alley, but it is now closed to the public. Instead, walk along Shing Sai Road.

7. Return to the waterfront at Belcher Bay Promenade. A little further along, you'll find the Kennedy Town Urban Farm, featuring hydroponic and organic planting.

8. Exit the promenade at the Kennedy Town waterfront sitting-out area, where there is a bus station.

9. Walk along Kennedy Town New Praya. You'll need to cross the road, as there is no pavement close to the waterfront. This area features restaurants, bars, and coffee shops.

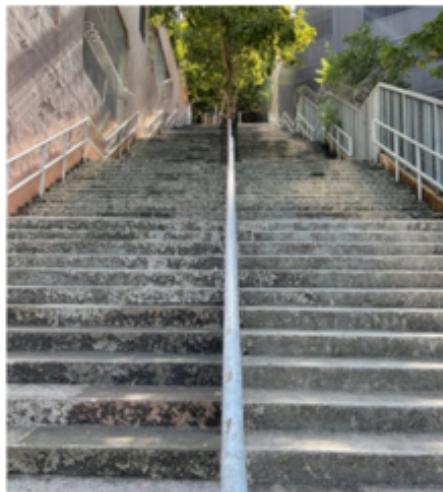

10. Walk across Cadogan Street and follow the Cadogan Promenade to the end. You will arrive on Sai Ning Street. Turn right

13. Continue along Victoria Road to the University of Chicago Francis and Rose Yuen Campus. Walk down the campus driveway for panoramic views of Hong Kong's western islands. You'll also find the Jubilee Battery here, a World War II relic.

14. Stay on Victoria Road, passing Villa Cecil and Blarney Stone Villas. Shortly after, you'll see steps on the right leading down towards the coast. The trail descends past the Hong Kong Waterworks Sandy Bay Pumping Station, built in 1964.

15. The trail continues down to Sandy Bay Road, reaching the junction with Sha Wan Drive. A few meters down Sha Wan Drive, to the right, there's a driveway leading to a coastal path known locally as "Doggy Alley." This is a scenic and pleasant walk along the western coast. However, the path is a dead end—after 800 meters, you'll need to double back and return the way you came.

1. Starting at the corner of Cyberport Road and Information Crescent, turn right and head down to Cyberport Park. Be aware that there may still be some construction at the park. Enter the park and walk to the end, the waterfront will be on your right. Exit the park and turn right.

2. Walk up Cyberport Road until you see the new walkway on your right. This will lead straight into Waterfall Bay Park.

3. Follow the path through Waterfall Bay Park. Along the way, you will encounter the extraordinary sight of thousands of abandoned house gods concreted into the hillside. Be sure to also walk past the Wah Fu Swimming shed

4. Stay as close to the coast as possible, and you'll exit Waterfall Bay Park onto Tin Wan Praya Road. Walk along this road, where you'll pass old industrial units, warehouses, and ice storage facilities. Just before the Nestle Ice Storage building on the right, you'll notice an unmarked path. Follow this path to reach the Aberdeen Harbour wall for stunning views of Aberdeen and its surroundings.

5. At the end of Tin Wan Praya Road, you can enter the Aberdeen Fish Market or continue along Yue Shi Cheung Road. If you choose to explore the market, be aware it is a working space with trucks actively loading fish. The area can be wet, slippery, and smelly—but it's an incredible and lively spot to explore!

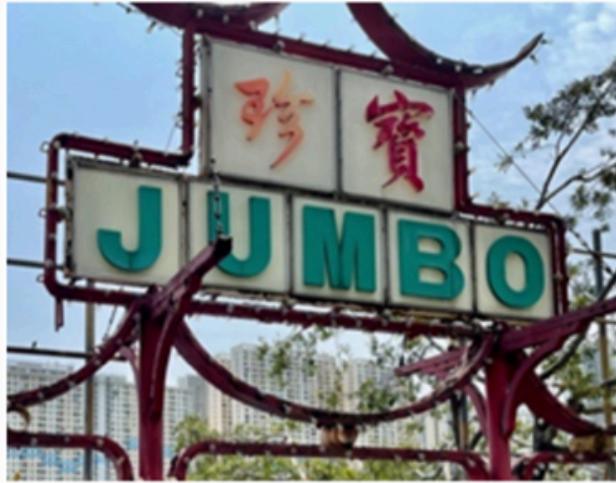

The corrugated wall outside the fish market is home to one of the Weez Walls from 2025, "All Good" by Art Collective, Parents Parents

6. Shortly after the Fish Market, you'll reach the Aberdeen Waterfront Park and Promenade. From here, you can catch ferries to Lamma Island or take a sampan trip around Aberdeen Harbour. Although the Jumbo Floating Restaurant is now defunct, the area is still bustling with activity. Alternatively, you can simply enjoy a relaxing stroll through the park.

7. Just beyond the sampan rides is the end of the park. Stay on the path as close to the coast as possible—this is Heung Yip Path. Cross the small footbridge over Staunton Creek Nullah, then turn left to stay on Heung Yip Path. The flyover to Ap Lei Chau will be visible overhead. At this point, it's not possible to remain close to the coast, so the route continues through Wong Chuk Hang, across the Ocean Park peninsula.

8. Continue along Heung Yip Path until it joins Heung Yip Road at the end of the nullah. At this point, take a recommended detour: turn left and walk a few meters up Heung Yip Road. Across the road, you'll find the Pagani showroom, and just around the corner in a side alley is Weez Wall No. 2, a vibrant mural painted by local street artist Stern Rockwell.

After the detour, continue along Heung Yip Road to the roundabout. Bear right onto Ocean Park Road, which leads to Ocean Park MTR Station. If you're interested in more street art, take a short detour to the left along Yip Fat Street, where several unique murals can be found.

9. Walk through Ocean Park Station and exit onto Wong Chuk Hang Road. Turn right and continue straight. This road eventually becomes Island Road. Although this is a main road and there isn't much to see, you'll soon pass the Hong Kong Country Club.

10. Just beyond the Hong Kong Country Club, you'll find steps on the right leading down to the coast. This is the Mills and Chung Path. Follow the steps and take the path along the coastline. The trail offers stunning views across Middle Island and beyond, as well as back towards Ocean Park.

The path eventually ascends via steps and rejoins Island Road. You'll pass the Victoria Recreation Club on your right as you continue along Island Road.

11. A short distance ahead is Deep Water Bay Beach. You can choose to walk along the sandy beach or stay on Island Road. At the far end of the beach, you'll find a barbecue area. From here, you can transition onto the Seaview Promenade, which connects Deep Water Bay and Repulse Bay.

12. At the end of the Seaview Promenade, you'll join Beach Road. From here, you can either walk along Repulse Bay Beach or stay on Beach Road. Along the way, you'll pass The Pulse, a shopping mall with outdoor eateries and boutique shops. A little further ahead, you can take a short detour to visit the Kwun Yam Shrine, a vibrant and culturally significant landmark.

At the end of Beach Road, turn right onto South Bay Road. Follow South Bay Road to the very end, past Middle Bay and right up to South Bay.

13. At the end of South Bay Road you will see some new steps turning to the left. Take this route and follow the trail. There are a couple of new signposts pointing to Stanley, and pointing back to South Bay, where you have just come from. Follow the signs to Stanley. Please note parts of this route are quite steep, but the views are very well worth it.

You will, in turn hit a paved area which leads onto Headland Road. Turn right, and a few metres later turn right again onto Repulse Bay Road. A further 100m later, turn right again onto Chung Hom Kok Road.

14. Walk down Chung Hom Kok Road to the roundabout at the end. Just before the bus stop on the left, you'll find a narrow trail that leads to Ma Hang Park.

15. Follow the pathways through Ma Hang Park, heading up and down while keeping the coast on your right. Try to stay as close to the coast as possible, although you'll still be heading mainly east. The park has multiple levels and can be a little disorienting, but it's worth exploring. It's a peaceful park with access to some underused beaches, making for a pleasant detour.

16. Exit Ma Hang Park near Murray House, which is located by Stanley Main Street and Stanley Plaza. This area offers a variety of refreshment outlets and shops. Walk along Stanley Main Street to the roundabout and the junction with Stanley Market Street, where you can explore the vibrant Stanley Market.

4. Turn right onto the catchwater. This is a long, flat trail that leads all the way to the entrance of Tai Tam Country Park. For a less secluded route, you can take Tai Tam Road instead, but the catchwater is far more scenic and tranquil. While much of this stage is away from the coast, the rural hiking experience is rewarding, with views of the Redhill Peninsula and Turtle Cove from the trail.

5. Upon entering Tai Tam Country Park, you'll be greeted with stunning views of the Tai Tam Tuk Reservoir. Cross Tai Tam Road and continue down Tai Tam Reservoir Road, which will bring you back to the coast at Tai Tam Bay. At the end of this road, you'll see the historic Raw Water Pumping Station on your right.

7. At the end of the dam, you will find a trail which shortly joins with the Hong Kong Trail Section 7

8. Take the trail and follow it all the way to the start of the Dragon's Back at Shek O Road. Along this section, you'll encounter fascinating catchwater structures and examples of early 20th-century waterworks equipment. While most of the trail is inland, there are occasional glimpses of the coast to keep things interesting. Near the end of this section, a short detour down some steps will lead you to the Hong Kong Hobie Club beach, a great spot to take a break.

To reach the start of the Dragon's Back, which is the final destination, you'll need to climb approximately 730 steps, ascending to the top of this section and marking the beginning of one of Hong Kong's most famous trails.

4. Continue to follow the trail downhill from Shek O Peak. This is part of Hong Kong Trail Stage 8, so you'll see marker posts along the way. The trail undulates with a mix of downhill and uphill sections, offering stunning views of Shek O on one side and Redhill on the other.

5. Stay on Hong Kong Trail Stage 8—there is really no other path to take. Eventually, you'll encounter a right turn signposted for Tai Tam Gap and Shek O Road. Follow this route, which is mostly flat, with some rocky sections. Continue along the markers for Stage 8.

6. The trail will soon transition into a paved road. Follow this road until you reach a signpost marked Big Wave Bay. Take the route toward Big Wave Bay. Although this section was closed due to a landslip, it has since been repaired, and hikers have reported no issues. If you're unsure, detours are marked on route maps, though these may add distance and involve some additional climbing.

As you progress, you'll get glimpses of the urban areas of Chai Wan and Shau Kei Wan to your left.

If you choose the detour, make sure to retrace your steps back to the junction afterward and continue toward Cape Collinson Road.

Shortly after, you'll encounter a long stretch of steps leading down to the road. At the bottom, you have two options:

- Turn left to follow Cape Collinson Road (this route is slightly longer).
- Turn right, then take the steps on the left, which also lead to Cape Collinson Road slightly further down.

Turn left and go to the end, where there is a short concrete slope. You will need to go up this slope. Someone has helpfully left a rope there that can be used to get up.

6. You will find yourself at the side of the Expressway. Walk along the side of the expressway until you reach the Shau Kei Wan Wholesale Fish Market. The route along the expressway is quite rough, but is used by many people.

7. When you reach the Fish Market, you are on Tam Kung Temple Road. Continue Walking along this road, passing the boatyards on your right. At the end of the road, you'll see Tam Kung Temple on your left.

8. Just across the road you will see the Eastern District Cultural Square, with a large outdoor stage, and the Shau Kei Wan Typhoon Shelter.

9. If you avoid walking near the expressway, be aware that you'll miss part of the coastline and instead follow busy main roads. Use a map to navigate as best as possible to Chai Wan Road. Walk north until you reach the junction with A Kung Nam Road on the right. Follow this road to its end, and you'll arrive near the boatyards on Tam Kung Temple Road. The finishing point is shown in the picture below in the red box.

1. Follow the Aldrich Bay Promenade Westward. The path hugs the coast, offering plenty to see, including the Shau Kei Wan Typhoon Shelter. At the end of the promenade, the path reverts to the pavement on Oi Kan Road. It's not possible to follow the coastline here, so continue on Oi Kan Road, which soon becomes Tai On Road.

2. Stay on Tai On Road until you reach the junction with Tai Hong Street. Turn left and follow the road back toward the harbor. From here, you should easily reconnect with the coastline at Sai Wan Ho Park.

3. The path naturally transitions into Quarry Bay Park. This section is straightforward—keep the harbor on your right. About halfway through the park, you'll find the Alexander Grantham Fireboat Exhibition, which is worth a visit if you have time. From here, enjoy the views across to Kowloon and the old Kai Tak Airport, now repurposed as a cruise liner terminal.

4. Quarry Bay Park transitions into the Quarry Bay Pet Garden. Continue straight through the pet garden. At the end of the garden, turn right onto Hoi Yu Street

As you walk along Hoi Yu Street, the Eastern Expressway will be on your left, gradually rising into an overpass. Straight ahead is the start of the new walkway under the Island Eastern Corridor.

5. Stay on the new walkway or boardwalk all the way to Causeway Bay. You will eventually come out on Victoria Park Road. Stay close to the coastline and you will soon come across the Noonday Gun. If you happen to visit at noon, you can witness the ceremonial firing of the gun

6. Shortly after passing the Noonday Gun, turn right down an alleyway that keeps you close to the coastline. The path soon becomes Hung Hing Road, leading you past the Yacht Club and toward the entrance of the Cross Harbour Tunnel.

7. Shortly after passing the Yacht Club and still on Hung Hing Road, you'll come across the Wanchai Temporary Promenade. Keep as close as possible to the coastline as you continue. Note that the promenade may look different now compared to the photos in this guide, as it is a temporary structure.

As you progress, you should be able to spot the iconic Hong Kong Convention and Exhibition Centre not far ahead.

9. Continue west along the harbourfront promenade, where you'll encounter several art installations along the way. Soon, you'll arrive at Tamar Park, with the Hong Kong Government Offices on your right.

Beyond Tamar Park lies AIA Vitality Park, home to the Hong Kong Observation Wheel and, occasionally, a traditional ice-cream van for a refreshing treat.

Just a few more steps, and you'll reach Pier 8, marking the end of Weez Walk 2026. Congratulations on completing the journey! The picture below depicts the final destination of Stage 6.
